Augustine on the Canon. Augustine was bishop of Hippo (in the Roman colony on the northern coast of western Africa). He was the first major figure in the Church to set forth a list which included all of the disputed Old Testament books without making any distinction between the fully canonical Hebrew books and the lesser books derived from the Septuagint.

St. Augustine of Hippo is regarded as one of the most important figures in the development of Western Christianity. In a statement that to my way of thinking summarizes his understanding of how Christians are to live out their faith, he says, "Love God and do as you please." At first glance, his words appear disturbing and irresponsible.

Objection 1. It would seem that the eternal law is not a sovereign type existing in God. For there is only one eternal law. But there are many types of things in the Divine mind; for Augustine says (Qq. lxxxiii, qu. 46) that God "made each thing according to its type." Therefore the eternal law does not seem to be a type existing in the Divine mind.. Objection 2.
