Sight Singing: Pitch, Interval, Rhythm book by Samuel Adler

With more than 2500 interactive lessons, EarMaster covers all the core aspects of ear training, sight singing, and rhythm training. You will learn to: sight-sing melodies off musical scores, sing back melodies you just heard, clap back rhythms you just heard, sing on pitch, transcribe music by ear, play in rhythm and with precise timing and recognize chords, intervals, scales and cadences by ear.

EarMaster 7 Professional - Ear Training, Sight-Singing ...

These examples have only one pitch so you can really focus on the rhythm. Learn to sight sing a single melody line first. One line is written in treble clef and the other line in bass clef. Train your ear by focusing on one interval at a time. Take it to the next level and add minor keys. Practice reading in four part harmony.

The Practice Room - Sight Singing Online

Knowing where tendency tones in the melodic line are going to go, what certain interval leaps are common with certain harmonizations and melody choices. The best way to do it is to take a short excerpt of ANYTHING (simple to difficult, at first), record yourself sight-singing it after giving yourself 30~ seconds...
