Trumpetvine Collection - Dutch Gardens USA, Inc.

Set your garden alight in summer with our brightly coloured Trumpet Vines. Campsis will flower their socks off in summer well into autumn with bright, vivid displays. The new 'Summer Jazz' series is much more compact, hardier and very easy to grow.

Campsis 'Summer Jazz' Trumpet Vine collection - 3 plants

A vigorous North American native, Campsis radicans (Trumpet Vine) is a self-clinging woody climber with particularly showy trumpet-shaped flowers, 3 in. long (8 cm) in bright shades of orange or red. Appearing throughout the summer, these magnificent

Campsis radicans (Trumpet Vine) - Gardenia.net

Trumpet vine (Campsis radicans), also known as trumpet creeper, is a fast-growing perennial vine. Growing trumpet vine creepers is really easy and although some gardeners consider the plant invasive, with adequate care and pruning, trumpet vines can be kept under control.

Trumpet Vine Plant: How To Grow ... - Gardening Know How

The trumpet vine really knows how to climb. This deciduous, clinging vine can climb to heights of 30 feet during the growing season. The bright scarlet, trumpet-shaped blossoms are beloved by both gardeners and hummingbirds. The vines die back in winter to grow again the next spring. Read on for ...
